

Course Planning Tip Sheet

Learner Feedback

An important aspect of active learner engagement is presenting learners with feedback during or immediately after the learning activity so they can assess their own progress. Mechanisms to provide this feedback to learners include:

- Question & Answer during the activity
- Active discussion
- Providing results of pre & post tests
- Debriefing after simulation, role play or return demonstration

Note: Providing learner feedback is different from the learner completing a formal evaluation of the activity. Both are required of activities providing contact hours.

References:

1. 2015 ANCC Primary Accreditation Provider Application Manual.
2. California Board of Registered Nursing, Title 16.