

Rotation Guideline Updates 2022-2023 v1 (Updated 6/17/22)

Olive View

The updated Olive View-UCLA resident complement this year will be three R2s, two R3s, and one R5, with an R1 available for 22 weeks frontloaded towards beginning of the year. This change was made to reinstitute the intern year Outpatient Rotation which was found to be highly educational. We also wanted to preserve the endoscopy and kidney elective rotations for the R3. However, the reduction of juniors at residents means that the OV chief needs to play a bigger role to ensure that our county patients continue to be well cared for and our juniors do not exceed work hour restrictions.

Updated OV Chief Resident Roles:

- Be primarily responsible for admin-related tasks such as elective case scheduling, M&M conference, scrubbing clinic lists, etc. The R3s will still be in charge of weekly conference presentations.
- Assist the R3s on morning rounds and staffing patients to ensure first start cases happen on time. This absolutely does not mean that the chiefs are taking over the primary responsibility of "running the service" at OV, which will remain the role of the R3s, but when the census is high, the chief should play a more active role during morning rounds.
 - Some suggestions from current R2/3s to help include: rounding on POD1 lap choles/appys, or post-op oncology patients that require more time to see
- Be available to stay late 1 to 2 times per week to help staff late starts/add-ons.
 - The OR availability is changing this year and there are more anticipated late start elective cases that need coverage.
 - We expect the OV chief to help offload some of these later starts to get our R3s home at a reasonable time. The service chief is responsible for keeping tabs on work hours. Hopefully this is a positive change as it allows the chiefs to earn some more autonomy in the OR and get more TA cases.

Ultimately our goals for making these changes is to help the time we spend at work more exciting and educational for the greatest number of residents possible. This year, our new interns will get back a dedicated month of outpatient anatomy lab time with Dr. Peacock, the R2s will spend a "reasonable amount" of time at OV (instead of potentially 6 months of OV if we bump up the resident complement to 4 R2s at OV), the R3s earned some valuable elective time, the R4s get a flex rotation which benefits the entire cohort in terms of case coverage, and the chiefs still get keep the same great rotations as before.

Trauma L/A Duty Hours Change

Due to popular demand, we have revised the weekday senior L trauma hours to 5a-5p (except Tues 5a-6p, Wed 5a-8p). Several reasons behind the change:

1. Grants more time for sign-out in the morning and time for the L trauma day team to review patient charts DURING duty hours before having to rush to morning rounds
2. Allows residents to spend more evening time with family/kids/loved ones during the weekdays
3. Aligns schedule with trauma interns so there's less confusion during transition periods about who to contact in the mornings

Please note, there is no change to the L/A Intern hours – AM rounds will still begin at 6:30am to give the interns time to make the list and to allow the trauma attending to join for the majority of rounds

Trauma/Case Coverage Backup

- Please see the Senior Weekend Call Schedule for weekends on which you are the “Backup” resident.
- Flex R4 residents may or may not be rounding on their backup weekends. All other seniors are designated as the backup resident on weekends during which they are already rounding.
- This backup system is for both overwhelming trauma coverage or for all RR case coverage needs in the event a senior resident is post call, over duty hours, critical trauma occurs while trauma chief/attending is scrubbed, or if multiple cases occur simultaneously on the weekends.

- An example: if the U/MIS R4 is post Friday night trauma call and there are elective U/MIS cases or a takeback, the backup resident will cover the case so that the post-call senior can go home.
- If you are scheduled on trauma backup for any given weekend, it is your responsibility to be available on an as-needed basis.

R4 Flex Rotation

The purpose of the rotation is to provide coverage flexibility for residents who go on vacation, family leave, illness, "critical trauma" when L chief is operating, and case coverage gaps.

Please view the "Flex R4 Rotation Schedule" posted on the UCLA website for more details: You will be assigned a primary service for most weeks. On the schedule, * = Primary service.

Expectations:

- Round with primary "HOME" service team for the week, function as another member of the team.
- When covering L service, you need to be on-site for critical trauma coverage as the senior on the team.
- Other teams listed on the Flex R4 schedule have senior residents missing and you are expected to be available for case coverage.
- If your "primary" team does not have cases, you are expected to cover cases for other services.
- You will not be incorporated into the weekend call schedule for these other service EXCEPT as outlined in the RRUCLA senior rounding/trauma call schedule.
- You are expected to be available on weekends on which you are "on call" or "backup" to come in and cover cases. You may not be out of town during those weekends or unavailable if assistance is requested.

U/MIS

These services will be combined given the 6 chief residents this year. There will be an R5, R4, and R3 on the service who will alternate weekend call as outlined in the Weekend Call Schedule.

The U3 will continue to cover VA consults on Mondays and Wednesdays after 6 pm.

The U R3 will take Trauma Resident call on occasion when they are weekend rounding on the U service, the U R4/5 will take Trauma Chief Friday night call on occasion when they are weekend rounding on the U service.

The U/MIS and Endocrine interns will alternate weekends, which is determined by the Intern Call Schedule.

Similar to roles at SMH and C service, the U R4 will be in charge of making the elective U/MIS OR schedule for the upcoming week and finding resident coverage with input from the service chief R5.
